

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus, including a processing device for processing information regarding a job search request or inquiry upon a detection of an occurrence of a searching event which is an occurrence of a job posting, a posting of new or revised information from an individual or individuals, a news release of a business, an employment-related event, an economic report, industry-specific news, or an event which creates an interest to fill or seek a position, which processing device automatically detects the occurrence of the searching event, utilizes information stored in a memory device in processing the information regarding the job search request or inquiry, and generates a message responsive to the job search request or inquiry containing information regarding a job opening, position, assignment, contract, or project, and a transmitter which transmits the message to a communication device associated with an individual.